Nakhon Chum temple will see a large pagoda the glittering gold stands out very nicely. It is gold reflecting the sunlight which is a very beautiful picture. The history of the Maha Chedi is in the shape of a chipped rice bush, with 3 of them in the same base. Inside the Great Chedi contains 9 large Buddha relics.

Boromthat Nakhon Chum temple it is an ancient temple in the Sukhothai period, about 600 years old, of Nakhon Chum, an ancient ancient city. This temple is considered the center point of Nakhon Chum city. When entering the temple area there is a Dharma Chakra in front. Behind is a large golden pagoda on the left is the temple the chedi has 4 arches of Buddha images, which are ancient monuments and with laterite sticks. When we walk around the pagoda in all 4 directions, inside is a viharn. Behind is a reclining Buddha arch which was reconstructed and in the measurement area there is also a Sri Maha Bodhi tree an old tree on the other side is the ubosot built with the great chedi and in the back is a monument of Phraya Lithai or Phra Maha Thammaracha 1. If we come to Phra Boromthat Nakhon Chum temple pay homage to the Mon Pagoda praying for the blessing of Phraya Lithai, Nakhon Chum, Kamphaeng Phet. But not all. In addition to the outstanding feature of the great chedi inside the temple, there are also other important places which are the Thai house pavilion and the worship pavilion. The Thai Cultural Center, Community Bonds, Nakhon Chum subdistrict it is a beautiful Thai - style building. Built entirely from golden teak. Inside exhibits antiques and artifacts from the past that depict historical stories and lifestyles of the townspeople. It is a center for collecting antiques and stories of the city of Nakhon Chum to be a source of learning and transferring local wisdom both religious culture, tradition, way of life. Then take you to Phra Ruang Hot Spring at present,

Pho Phet Bang temple, Kamphaeng Phet Province, which is the priceless Buddha image of Kamphaeng Phet and is the place. The most revered of the people of Kamphaeng Phet, which was enshrined in the Viharn around the year 2479. Reverend Father Phiew, Phra Thammathimuth Muni abbot of Bang temple Primate of Kamphaeng Phet Province at that time and Luang Pho Pha Phrakhru Withanawachirasat had to summon Luang Pho Phet from the temple which is the presiding amulet in the ancient

viharn to be placed in the ubosot of Bang temple along with Luang Pho Sukhothai but not widely publicized in any way that some temples were originally not open to the public to worship but now the temple is open to devotees of Luang Pho Phet to worship. Luang Pho Phet is a bronze Buddha image in Chiang Saen style. The subduing Mara, known as Singha 1, is not easy to find. It has a lap width of 2 cubits 1 creep 5 inches, 3 cubits 1 creep in height, has a beautiful Buddha image and is larger than Luang Pho Phet of Phichit Province older 800 years, the people of Kamphaeng Phet believe that if anyone comes to worship, they will be rich as rich as in the Chiang Saen period Rich in millions and hundreds of thousands like the name of the art of Chiang Saen. Then lead you to Kamphaeng Phet Historical Park Muang Kamphaeng Phet, the city plan is similar to a trapezoid. Laying a long line parallel to the Ping River along the northwest to the southeast the original Kamphaeng Phet city wall Probably looks like an earthen embankment and a 3- tiered moat.

Later, the city wall was developed into laterite walls. Around them were built parapets, parapets and gates. As for the inner wall, traces are still visible on the north side. It is believed that this laterite wall may have been built during the reign of King Borom Trai Lokanat (1368 - 1488).

1. Ancient sites within the city walls a total of 20 sites have been explored, the most important of which are Phra Kaew temple, Phra That temple, Ancient Temple or Sa Mon, Shiva Shrine, and Klang Nakhon temple, etc.

2. Ancient sites outside the city walls Generally known as " Aranyik District ", it is located outside the northern city wall. It has an area of approximately 1,611 acres, located on a small gravel hill 37 ancient monuments have been found, most importantly, Phra Non temple, Phra Si Iriyapat temple, Chang Rop temple, Awat Yai temple, Kong Chai temple, Awat Noi temple, Choeng Wai temple, Dong Wai temple, Chang temple and Kalothai temple, etc. The ancient site was located on the western side of the Ping river both inside and outside the city of Nakhon Chum. There is also a group of important ancient monuments located in Nakhon Chum, with Phra Boromthat temple and Sook Ko temple etc, outside of Nakhon Chum, such as Fort Thung Setthi, Nong Phikun temple, Maung Kale temple and Chedi Klang Thung temple, etc. Kamphaeng Phet Historical Park has been regarded as a World Cultural Heritage Site.

In the year 1991 together with Sukhothai - Si Satchanalai Historical Park due to evidence showing the excellent works of early Thai architecture. The splendor of the art and architecture of the Sukhothai Kingdom There is much evidence of this excellent work in the three historical parks mentioned.
