Afternoon Take you to Klang Bang Kaew Temple. It is an old temple built since the Ayutthaya period or at the end of the U-Thong era. From the condition of antiques within the temple, such as the Ubosot, Bai Sema, Viharn, and Red Sandstone Buddha images which is the presiding Buddha image in the chapel is Luang Por To, Wat Klang Bang Kaew has been restored. If you look at the general condition, it can be assumed that it is a temple that used to flourish in the past because many objects show that it has been built and renovations such as murals in the chapel and the golden teak frescoes inside the Hor Trai which are very beautiful, showing the craftsmanship of the craftsmen in the early Rattanakosin era. Then take you to Phra Pathom Chedi. It is an important sanctuary of Thailand located in Nakhon Pathom. It is the largest pagoda in Thailand. Phra Pathom Chedi is a large chedi in the shape of an inverted bell. The original structure was made of logs, fastened with a large chain, and made of bricks. It was restored first time by King Mongkut (King Rama IV) while he was still a monk and found the Phra Pathom Chedi in an old dilapidated condition. It is a place worth paying respect to when you travel to Nakhon Pathom.

Evening Dinner at the restaurant. Then take you to check-in at Xen Hotel Nakhon Pathom or a hotel of the same level for leisure time.

Day 2 Sanam Chandra Palace - Thai Human Imagery Museum - Sam Phran Temple- Rai Khing temple

Morning Breakfast at hotel's dining room. Pack your bags to check out from the hotel.

Then take you to Sanam Chandra Palace. His Majesty King Rama VI, while holding the title of Crown Prince, received the royal burden from His Majesty King Rama V about laying tiles to decorate Phra Pathom Chedi. This made him familiar with the landscapes of this region, and he was aware of the historical and cultural value of Nakhon Pathom city. Therefore, He wished to build the royal residence to change the residence to Nakhon Pathom. He graciously Her Royal Highness Princess Maha Chakri Sirindhorn to buy land from the people to build a palace, and was graciously pleased to the name of this palace as "Sanam Chan Palace". Then take you to Thai Human Imagery Museum. It was inspired by the creators was led by Ajarn Duangkaew. Phittayakorn art in creating Thai wax figures in the style of Madame Truso.

Due to many problems in making wax figures, such as Thailand's climate with hot temperatures, high humidity, and a lot of dust, Duangkaew has spent more than 10 years researching and experimenting to find other materials to replace wax. The material must be durable, strong, and do not degrade the characteristics of the wax figure. They finally found that figures can create from "Fiberglass" that is durable, exquisite, beautiful like the real person, and gives a softer feel than wax. The first fiberglass wax statue that looks like a real person is a wax figure of Phra Ratchasangwaraphimon (Luang Pu Toh Inthasuwanno), Pradu Chimplee Temple, Bangkok spent time more than 3 years to make it. After researching and experimenting, the participants saw that this work deserves to be encouraged to advance because it is a work that will create a reputation for the nation. Therefore, in 1984, there was the project to establish a fiberglass wax museum named "Thai Wax Museum". It is an exhibition of various puppet sets as follows: Historical set Works in honor of His Majesty Former King of the Chakri Dynasty, Rama 1-9, a set of 17 monks, one corner of life set: Thai chess puppets, Thai family, interested in news, cute secretary, take a break, the Important Person Set is a special exhibition of 3 Thai music teachers and 3 important people of the world, King Bhumibol Adulyadej and the Emancipation of Slavery, Sunthorn Phu's Abhaimanee Dress, Thai Play Set. Currently, the Thai Puppetry Museum displays a total of 125 puppets, and more and more figures are being created.

Noon Lunch at the restaurant.

Afternoon Take you to Sam Phran Temple. It is another attraction of Nakhon Pathom province. The appearance of the building is a pink sphere, about 80 meters high, 16 floors. The green-scaled dragon that wraps around the building from the bottom to the top is a walkway tunnel. The distance is about 350 meters, leading to a 360-degree viewpoint at the top of the dragon's head. Moreover, there is a small principal Buddha image enshrined in the Ubosot, amounting to 1,250. There is also a large Buddha image. "Luang Por Phuttho Phawana" in the open air is a golden Buddha image. In the temple area, there are sacred things at various points to pay respect to the blessings according to faith, such as Guan Yin, giant turtles, serpents, etc. Then take you to Rai Khing temple. It is an important temple located on the Tha Chin Riverside.

It is believed that in the temple area, there were a lot of Chinese people who planted houses and grew ginger widely in the past until it became the name of the village or community in this area called "Rai Khing". Then, the temple was built to be the center of the villagers' minds. Therefore, the temple was named by the villages' name as "Wat Rai Khing". The temple territory is divided into two parts are religious sites and public places, which is the area of schools and hospitals. There is also a museum of antiques such as crockery and old books. In the riverside in front of the temple, there are thousands of big catfish. Tourists can buy bread to feed the fish. If you come on Friday or Sunday morning, there will be a market for shopping.

16.30 Depart from Nakhon Pathom to Bangkok would take around 50 minutes.
