Questions 14–16

The Forgotten Wallet

On his way home from school, Peter noticed a wallet lying near a bus stop. He picked it up and looked around, but nobody seemed to be searching for it.

Inside the wallet, there was some money, an identification card, and several receipts. Peter considered keeping the money because he wanted to buy a new pair of headphones. However, he remembered his father's advice: "Doing the right thing is often difficult when nobody is watching."

Peter took the wallet to the nearest police station. Later that evening, an officer called to tell him that the owner had been found. The owner was extremely grateful and offered Peter some money as a reward, but Peter politely refused.

14. Why did Peter consider keeping the money?

1. He wanted to buy something he could not afford.
2. He believed the wallet belonged to him.
3. The police officer told him to keep it.
4. He wanted to give the money to his father.

15. What does Peter's father's advice suggest?

1. People should only do the right thing when others are watching.
2. Doing the right thing can require strong character.
3. Parents should always watch their children.
4. It is impossible to make difficult decisions.

16. What can we INFER about Peter?

1. He cared more about money than honesty.
2. He often lost his belongings.
3. He was influenced by his father's values.
4. He expected to receive a reward.

Questions 17–20 Read the passage and answer the question below.

The Empty Seat

When a new student named Arun joined Class 1A, he usually sat quietly near the window. During group activities, he completed his work carefully but rarely spoke unless someone asked him a direct question.

At first, some students assumed that Arun was unfriendly. However, Mali noticed that he often stayed behind after class to help the teacher arrange books and clean the board. One afternoon, she saw him giving his lunch to a younger student who had forgotten to bring food.

Curious about Arun, Mali finally started a conversation with him. She discovered that he had recently moved to the city and was still learning to feel comfortable in his new school. Arun explained that he found it difficult to begin conversations because he was afraid of saying something embarrassing.

After that day, Mali invited Arun to join her group more often. Gradually, other students began talking to him as well. By the end of the term, Arun was no longer the quiet student near the window. He had become one of the most active members of the class.

17. Why did some students initially think Arun was unfriendly?

1. He refused to help his classmates.
2. He rarely spoke unless someone spoke to him first.
3. He often argued with other students.
4. He complained about his new school.

18. Which event caused Mali to question the other students' opinion of Arun?

1. Arun received excellent grades.
2. Arun asked Mali for help.
3. Mali saw Arun helping others.
4. Arun became active in class.

19. What was the MAIN reason Arun found it difficult to make friends?

1. He did not like his classmates.
2. He was too busy helping teachers.
3. He preferred studying alone
4. He was afraid of embarrassing himself.

20 . Which statement BEST expresses the main message of the passage?

1. Quiet people are usually better students than talkative people.
2. First impressions can sometimes be misleading.
3. Students should always sit near the window.
4. Moving to a new school is always easy.
